

Thesis Title : An analytical study the activities to the supplement of the learning and the teaching of the Four Paths of Accomplishments resulting in Desirable Behaviors : A case study of the Third Years Vocational Students in Electrical Division at Phrae Technical College

Researcher : Mr. Chatri Sesthawanich

Degree : Master of Arts (Buddhist Studies)

Thesis Supervisory Committee

: Phrakrukowitattawatee B.A.,M.A., Ph.D

: Dr.Wichasinee Sukhapanthu B.A.(Mass Communication), M.A.,
Ph.D.(Edu.Adm.)

Date of Graduation : February 16, 2013

ABSTRACT

This research is of 3 objectives namely (1) to study the principle of the Four Paths of Accomplishment in Theravāda Buddhist scriptures, (2) to analytically study the activities to support the students' learning which concerns the Four Paths of Accomplishment, (3) to study the achievement to the students' behaviors after using the principle of the Four Paths of Accomplishment to support the learning and the teaching for the third year students in 2011 C.E. in the electrical division at Phrae Technical College.

This research is conducted by the qualitative research, the documentary research methodology and the survey research. The population used in this research consists of 90 students in the third year vocational education in electrical division at Phrae Technical College where the students attended a Technical College in the educational year of 2011 and there are the selected sampling teachers for the 8 advisors of each activity. The tools : the questionnaire for the students and the interview 8 of teachers about the educational activities. The statistics used in data analysis is percentage, means, and standard deviation.

From the researchy it is of form that 1) The principle of the Fours Path of Accomplishment brings to the success consiting of four cases namely (1) Chanda is the satisfaction with the field in which aspiration is trying to work . (2) Effort : The effort is the devotion to work hard until the job is completed. (3) Citta : Thoughtfulness is the influence of a person who is concerned with his job until finishing. (4) Vimamsā : The investigation is found on the base of work, and the consideration to solve the problems which are the fair achievements that lead to success.

2) All activities have objectives concerning the Four Paths of Accomplishment. 3) The achievement affect the behaviors of the students who practices the Four Paths of Accomplishment for learning the activities. Chanda is the students' satisfaction, love, and faith in electrical division at the highest level. Viriya is effort to work hard and can solve the problems. Citta : Thoughtfulness is the influence of a person who is concerned with their jobs until finishing. Vimamsā: The investigation is found on the base of work, and the trial to solve all the problems.

The results of this research asising to the students are that the students are of the behaviors in compliance with the Four Paths of Accomplishment. In the general point, the students are of the behaviors in compliance with the prine ciples of the Four Paths of Accomplishment in high level with the diaviation of 4.25.